Photography and post-processing of furniture for a luxe homegoods manufacturer/retailer. Work involved setting up an ad-hoc photo studio at the client's retail location with multiple strobes, photographing various views of the furniture, retouching and clipping out images in post, dialing in final color, and optimizing a series of TIFFs and JPEGs for use in print and on the client's website.

Product photography. The gallery featured hundreds of different products, each of which needed to be shot, clipped, color corrected, retouched, and ultimately exported/ batch processed as JPEGs in three different sizes. Nomenclature was dictated by spreadsheets created to drive the product database.
